Abstract

The Duchy of Cornwall in the United Kingdom has experienced sound economic development under the leadership of the present Prince of Wales, Prince Charles. From an agricultural perspective, the duchy has been implementing bio-farming technologies in an effort to avoid the harmful effects of traditional technologization. From the point of view of the environment, it looks for sustainable technologies aiming to protect the human and the natural habitat from the destructive forces of pollution. The Duchy of Cornwall is a fine example of using timeless principles of development for the long-term benefit of the Cornish community.
